

John Stack is the Chairman of the Board and Treasurer of the nonprofit, Johnny's Ambassadors. More importantly, John is Johnny's dad. John serves as a lead ambassador and advocates our mission to external stakeholders to educate about the dangers of today's high-THC marijuana on adolescent brain development, mental illness, and suicide.

He works on a volunteer basis to educate parents and teens about the dangers of today's marijuana, alongside his wife, Laura, who is the Founder & CEO of Johnny's Ambassadors. He has a unique perspective as a father who lost his son to suicide and relates differently to the men/fathers/grandfathers in the room, who enjoy talking with him.

John is a staunch warrior in the fight to protect our youth from the harms of marijuana and very knowledgeable in the areas of marijuana products and potency, adolescent brain development, and legalization.

While he doesn't do the "speaking" portion of events, he is available at no additional charge for Q&A following Laura's presentation or will sit on a panel. Please let us know in advance if you want John to accompany Laura when she speaks for your organization.
