

Grace Davis Introduction

Grace Davis lived on the same dorm floor in college with a young man named Johnny Stack. Johnny confided in her about his struggles with cannabis use and mental illness, and sadly, Johnny's life was tragically cut short by suicide at 19 years old.

Losing Johnny inspired Grace to quit using cannabis and seek support. After nearly dropping out of college, Grace graduated and became an educator herself. Grace is now sober and successfully manages her bipolar diagnosis, speaking at schools around the U.S.

Grace was recently featured in the PBS docuseries called, A State of Mind: Confronting Our Mental Health Crisis in Wyoming, where she shared her concerns about the impact of THC use on youth, which she now hopes to share with you.

Please welcome ... GRACE DAVIS!
